More parking coming

Larry Lewis used a large trackhoe to dig up the parking lot next to the sheriff's office Monday. At one time, the lot was home to the Hendrix-McDanell Ford dealership which closed in the late 1960s and Lewis found a license plate from 1931 in the dirt. Over the next 60 days, the county will put in a new parking lot behind and beside the sheriff's office, which also will be enlarged by 18 feet. Photo by Kelley Warnick

Con-man hits two Warsaw groceries

A con-man swindled $26 from Deaton's Market in Warsaw on Friday, after unsuccessfully trying a similar scam at the Gallatin County IGA.

"He came in at about 10 a.m. when we were very busy," said store owner Lucy Deaton. "He threw a fit about getting overcooked chicken here and even though he didn't have a receipt, I gave him the money. We try extremely hard to please our customers and I gave him the benefit of the doubt just to move him along. It's hard when there's a long line of people and all anyone hears is that something bad is happening in the store."

Immediately before that, the same man created a similar outburst at the IGA claiming he'd bought $27 in undercooked chicken. Deli employee Michelle Henry called store owner Steve Goessling who directed her to refuse the fraudulent request for a refund.

"He didn't have a receipt and he was trying to intimidate and threaten our employees," said Goessling. "We have a standard procedure for cooking our chicken and it's literally impossible to undercook it. That's probably why he changed his strategy when he moved on to Deaton's. Our red flags go up whenever someone starts abusing our employees or other customers like that. We refused to allow him to steal from the store."

The con-man is about six-foot tall with a large stomach. He has dark, thinning hair with a goatee and sideburns. Anyone with information about his identity should call the Gallatin County Sheriff's Department at 567-5751.

GCHS graduation will be Sat., May 30

The Gallatin County School Board has set graduation for Saturday, May 30, at 2 p.m. The last day of school will be Friday, May 29. The board opted to use Election Day, May 19, as a make-up day to keep the school calendar from stretching into June.

The school system missed 11 days this year because of bad weather. All those missed days had to be made up. Among the steps the board took to make up the days was to shorten spring break from five days to two and to extend school 30 minutes a day for a two-week period.

Derby Week weather should be fantastic

This year, Derby Week looks as if it will bring fantastic weather to Gallatin County.

Although, temperatures are expected to be chilly mid-week, conditions should be perfect by the weekend.

Cloudy skies and a chance of rain will keep temperatures in the 50s on Thursday. Conditions should begin to moderate nicely by Friday which is expected to be mostly sunny with a high of 67 and a low of about 47 for the running of the Kentucky Oaks at Churchill Downs.

Derby Day on Saturday should be delightful with sunny skies and a high of 72 predicted.

There's a slight chance of showers on Sunday but temperatures should remain warm with a high of 72 and a low of 56.

County Clerk getting ready for primaries

Governor candidates to be chosen May 19

County Clerk Tracy Miles is getting ready for the May primary election that's less than a month away.

Miles has scheduled a meeting of all poll workers for next Wednesday, May 6, at 9 a.m. at her office when all voting machines will be inspected. There are no changes in polling places for the county's eight voting precincts (Lower Warsaw, Upper Warsaw, Veterans Memorial, Gold Star, Glencoe, Sparta, Concord and Napoleon) in the May 19 election when polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

There are no local races in the primary but with Democrat Governor Steve Beshear unable to run for a third term, the race for governor has captured most of the attention.

The only local election this year will be in November for a seat on the Gallatin County Board of Education from the Upper Warsaw/Veterans Memorial district. Bradley Rahe was appointed to fill the open seat from that district and has indicated he will be a candidate in the November special election.

The Republican primary for Kentucky governor has become a hard-fought and competitive campaign between four candidates: Louisville businessman Matt Bevin, a favorite of the Tea Party; Agriculture Commissioner James Comer; former Louisville councilman Hal Heiner; and former Kentucky Supreme Court Justice Will T. Scott. The four will appear in a debate May 11, which will be televised on KET. (See Kentucky Commentary on Page 2 for an analysis of the Republican primary).

On the Democrat side, two-term state Attorney General Jack Conway is running against former congressional candidate Geoff Young in the primary. Conway is considered a favorite to win his party's nomination and face the Republican winner in November.

Other Races

Although Gov. Steve Beshear can't run again because of term limits, his son, Andy, is on the ballot as the sole Democratic candidate for attorney general.

He will run against one of two Republicans in the primary: state Sen. Whitney Westerfield of Hopkinsville and Lawrence County Attorney Michael Hogan.

The state auditor's race will see Democratic incumbent Adam Edelen facing Republican state Rep. Mike Harmon of Danville. Neither will have primary opposition.

My omens are trying to tell me something

This and That

By Kelley Warnick
Editor

As soon as I opened my eyes, Monday morning, my day was going to the birds.

When my feet first hit the floor, I opened the bedroom shades and saw a huge tom Wild Turkey strutting across my back yard. That was the closest I've ever been to Ben Franklin's favorite bird.

Then, when I got to the office, I found a large rubber owl that must have weighed 30 pounds waiting for me by the front door.

As I looked over the owl, Tori

Reinke from the Courthouse called to say I should get a photo of a Mourning Dove that has built its nest inside the spotlight on Main St.

Since it's Derby Week, I assumed the Wild Turkey, owl, and dove were omens sent to tell me which horse will win the biggest horse race of the year this Saturday. And boy, do I need some guidance. My Derby-losing streak feels like it goes back to the last Ice Age.

Now, that I had my omens, the next step was to find out what the turkey, owl and dove were trying to tell me.

I asked Randy Jones about the derby and my birds later that day.

"Don't ask me," he said. "I haven't won a Derby since Reagan was in the White House. I'm going with trifectas this year and have it narrowed down to 531 combinations so far."

I then tried to call Doug Terry but his wife said he was out collecting all the Kentucky Derby good luck charms he relies on to pick a winner.

There are many more people I plan to check with hoping someone can tell me what my omens mean. David Booth knows all about picking a winner. So does Steve Hendrix, Hank Howell, Barb Finrock, Clarence Davis, Steve Miles, Molly Carlton, Wende Askins and my sister, Christi.

Our trusted sports reporter Mark Gray has as much Kentucky Derby knowledge as anyone. He knows the splits Secretariat ran, the color of Triple Crown winner Affirmed's silks and the name of the first filly to win the race. Mark says all the experts are picking American Pharoah. He also said the favorite never wins and he knows nothing about turkeys, owls or doves.

Going over the prospective field for the big race, I discovered Far Right is too conservative to win, Frosted is too cold, Stanford is too intellectual, Mr. Z is always last, Ocho Ocho Ocho can't finish higher than eighth and Keen Ice is shivering to hard to get hot on Saturday.

When I told my brother about my confusion with trying to figure out the meaning of my omens, he said he had the answer.

"They're trying to tell you something all right," Clay said. "They're telling you if you bet on the horses, your money will be like a bird and will quickly fly away."

I suppose he could be right but I don't care. I'm going to bet on Dortmund just the same.

Why daily civility is so important in a hard world

Most of us can measure the quality of our days by a string of encounters with other people. These range from quick exchanges with someone over a store counter or at a restaurant drive-through window to long meetings with co-workers or hours spent with family. In between is a mix of expected and unexpected interactions. How we treat others in all of these exchanges reveals a great deal about how we are living.

Even in the briefest exchanges, hearing someone say, “I hope you have a nice day,” can actually determine whether someone has a good day or a bad one. Saying “thank you” while looking another person in the eye has meaning.

Common sense and personal experience tell us we can improve our own outlook by taking time to listen and extend a little kindness to others. This works with strangers and with our closest connections.

“If your profession is to fry French fries at McDonald’s, your role is to show the world what it looks like when God fries French fries.”

In his book, Choosing Civility: The Twenty-Five Rules for Considerate Conduct, P.M. Forni writes, “I suggest ... we agree on one principle: that a crucial measure of our success in life is the way we treat one another every day of our lives. When we lessen the burden of living for those around us we are doing well; when we add to the misery of the world we are not.”

Forni is a John Hopkins University professor who co-founded the Civility Project. He has described everyday manners as traffic lights. They keep things moving along in an orderly, pleasant fashion. They keep us from crashing into each other.

A few weeks ago, the Rev. Buddy Slaughter spoke during an Easter prayer breakfast at the Hopkinsville YMCA and described what it means to represent God in everything we do.

“If your profession is to fry French fries at McDonald’s, then do you know what your role is? It is to show the world what it looks like when God fries French fries,” Slaughter said.

Let’s take Slaughter’s message another step and apply it to the person buying lunch at a fast-food restaurant.

If you are the person standing at the restaurant counter or idling in the drive-thru line, ask yourself this: How would God order the French fries?

The opportunity for civility occurs many times in a single day. It matters.

Kentucky Commentary

GOP governor candidates are wrong about Kynect

The four Republican candidates for governor are all smart people, but they’re saying many dumb things as they try to appeal to the GOP base in the May 19 primary election.

All seem confused about, and are most likely purposely confusing Beshear’s expansion of the federal-state Medicaid program with Kynect—the state health insurance exchange where Kentuckians can enroll in Medicaid or private coverage.

Agriculture Commissioner James Comer keeps saying that the main problem with Kynect “is that it’s been a tool for Steve Beshear to greatly expand Medicaid.” But Kynect is not needed for the expansion. If Kentuckians had to use the federal exchange, they could use it to get on Medicaid, too.

Former Louisville Councilman Hal Heiner makes more sense, saying it would be wrong to “unplug” Kynect, as Comer says he would, because it would interrupt care for many Kentuckians.

He said, “Instead of signing up for the federal program, we need our own, Kentucky version,” with measures that reward personal responsibility. But in debate, Heiner seemed to confuse Kynect with the expansion of Medicaid, saying the exchange wasn’t financially sustainable.

There are no problems with the finances of the exchange, which is supported by fees on the insurance companies that wanted the state to create it instead of using the federal exchange.

The sustainability of the Medicaid expansion is in doubt. A state-funded study says the expansion will pay for itself through 2020 by picking up some state health expenses and creating so many jobs in health care that the taxes generated will cover the cost.

Louisville businessman and former U.S. Senate candidate Matt Bevin, who claims credit for turning Comer and Heiner into foes of Kynect, seems not to really know much about Medicaid.

He suggested the state could set a Medicaid-eligibility ceiling lower than 138 percent of the federal poverty line, which is required by the federal reform law.

He also said the exchange would cost the state $200 million to $500 million a year. Those are the old estimates for the Medicaid expansion, not Kynect.

Here are the projected annual costs of the Medicaid expansion for Kentucky taxpayers from Fiscal Year 2016-17, when the state will begin paying a small part of the cost, through 2020, when the state’s share will reach the law’s cap of 10 percent: $74 million, $173 million, $215 million and $294 million. The study says the net benefit to the state budget will decline during those years and turn to a negative $45 million in fiscal 2020-21, the last year of the study.

When candidates were asked how they would meet the state’s obligation, Comer said he would focus on recruiting jobs that would allow people to get off Medicaid, and, “we’re not going to provide incentives to industries that don’t provide health care benefits and living wages to their employees.”

That seems like a good idea, since incentive competition among states creates a race to the bottom. But it brought a retort from Bevin who said, “Living wage usually is code-speak for folks a little more liberal than myself.”

Bevin often acts as if he is the smartest person in the room, and he is a bright guy, but he showed his ignorance on coal at the recent debate when asked if coal’s current problems are more about the market than the EPA, Bevin gave the wrong but expected answer: “No. You have major seams, wider seams in Western Kentucky.” Even Kentuckians who have never been in a coal mine know that Kentucky’s seams are horizontal and are measured by thickness, not width.

There’s little reason to expect that this traveling caravan of ignorance and probably purposeful confusion will get any better before May 19. Let’s hope for better in the general election.

The Wildcat baseball team broke into the win column last week with a district win at Henry County.

Spada allowed one run and one hit over five innings to earn the victory. Wilson allowed one hit over the final two frames to get the save.

Along with 4 hits, Vest also scored both Wildcat runs. Bryson Caldwell had the lone RBI.

Kentucky Derby

Ticket, please: Carpe Diem across-the-board. And, pass me a rum-and-coke, Murphy.

Last time I picked a Derby winner Ronald Reagan was still here, UConn men and women teams won the NCAA, Tubby Smith was still in Lexington and Smarty Jones would also win the Preakness.

My methodology for picking a Derby winner is quicker than Calvin Borel's silver tongue, but less scientific than bracketology.

The name. Carpe Diem is four syllables, a Latin aphorism for all of us, seize the day!

Pass me another run-and-croke, Murphy.

Our Kentucky Derby. Between the Slows (hot air balloons, paddle-wheelers and "did ya see who's here?") and the Quicks (Julep or a few brews, a few ogles at pretty ladies under wacky hats). At around 6 o'clock, a horse race after a portly guy with the long horn primes our pride for My Old Kentucky Home.

Meanwhile, pass us 'nother ruth-and-roke, Murphy.

Our Run for the Roses. Put away your cell phone or you will see Derby 141 on the 11 o'clock news. Folks who shrug at the overdone pageantry, a teevee replay is quite enough.

For more than a century our Run for the Roses has inspired more elegant prose (and not), bad poetry, books written and movies made, than any two minutes about anything on the planet.

Native born Kentuckian, Irvin Cobb, born in Paducah, gone to New York in the early 1900s, wrote,

"Until you go to the Kentucky Derby with your own eyes, behold the Derby, you ain't never been nowhere and you ain't never seen nothing."

Having witnessed a handful of Derby runs, (with my own eyes), I find that Cobb's logic doesn't quite stick on the wall. (until you see a Derby) "... you ain't never been nowhere and you ain't never seen nothing," moves me to review. Gee, if I'm to believe I "ain't never been nowhere and ain't never seen nothing," because I missed a two minute horse race, well ...

Or, maybe Murphy passed one too many cups of cheer my way at the wrong times.

Either way, Derby 141 is another chance to get it right. Make mine Carpe Diem across-the-board.

And "hey, Murphy, pass pass me nother rum and coke, will ya? There's a good lad."

•Mary Jane Day attended the program about monarch butterflies at the extension office, last Wednesday, and found it most interesting and informative. The butterflies migrate to Mexico for the winter, lay their eggs, and die there - only the fourth generation survives. Mary Jane tells me she has several of the plants on which they thrive, and intends to plant more.

•A group from St. Joseph Church went to Keeneland on Thursday. The group included Mary Jane Day, Marge Albrecht, Marie Allison, Barb Finrock, Peggy and Tom Knorr, Joan Ludman, and Mary McIntosh. They had a wonderful time, the weather was perfect, the horses all ran in the same direction, and everyone left smiling and happy. Saturday night, Mary Jane, Barb Finrock, and Mary McIntosh went to the Elk Creek Winery to hear Lyn Payne-Holland sing. Lyn is a long-time friend of both Barb and Mary, and Mary Jane said that after hearing Lyn perform she can quite understand why they go to see her whenever she performs at Elk Creek. She proclaimed it the perfect ending to an otherwise dreary day.

•Jennifer Crabtree planned on having a great time roller skating with her husband, Scott, and son, Blake, at Champs in Louisville last week. Unfortunately, she fell and broke her right wrist, and now is sporting a bright pink cast complete with sparkles. She said it was a great place and lots of fun, and she plans on going back in about four weeks.

•Bob and Alex Welton attended the Lyle Lovett and John Hiatt concert at Belterra on Saturday night. Bob commented that the two are quite a comedy act in addition to being outstanding musicians.

•Patsy Brown enjoyed a visit from former business associate and family friend, Bill Stith, last Tuesday. They had coffee at Patsy's home, then enjoyed lunch at Welch's Restaurant in Carrollton. Sunday found Patsy once more at the park in Henry County with Nicole Towles and the twins, Jada and Carly, to see whether the eagles had hatched any eggs. Sure enough, they discovered that there is at least one baby in the nest. They had a grand time, and the girls went fishing as well as eagle-sighting. The twins stayed with Patsy for a while after their mother left, and they spent the afternoon riding on the golf cart and bicycling.

•Boyd Lionberger was a member of the Honor Flight to Washington DC on April 14. The group of 200 left the airport at 6 a.m. on that Tuesday morning and did not return until 10 p.m. that evening. They saw the statue of Iwo Jima, the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Arlington Cemetery, and the Air Force Memorial before enjoying their box lunch. After their meal, they were taken to the Lincoln Memorial, and to view the Vietnam and Korean Memorials, followed by dinner at the American Grill. Boyd said he was impressed and touched by the ceremonies both before and after the trip, and is proud to be a veteran so honored. When his plane landed, he was met by his wife, Betty, and family members Jack, Cindy and Jacalyn Williamson; Tim, Julie and Hannah Hamilton; Olivia Williamson, and Josh Hernden.

•On Sunday afternoon the Lionbergers enjoyed lunch brought to them at home by Julie and Tim Hamilton; Kristina and Rob Turner, and their little girls, Aleigha and Lilliann.

•Yolanda Gould was honored to travel to Baltimore, Maryland this weekend to be a part of the Miss Maryland/DC Plus America Pageant as a helper and reigning National Queen. On Friday, she traveled on United Airlines from Cincinnati to Newark, then Newark to Baltimore. Wearing her crown through the airports, she had a chance to talk to many people regarding what the MPA system is all about, and to discuss her platform of Cancer Awareness through the American Cancer Society/Relay for Life. She even got pictures with the pilots and was treated royally by all the attendants and staff at the airports. Yolanda traveled in style from the airport in a beautiful Chrysler 300 that Alamo upgraded just for her! On Saturday, she helped the competing girls get ready for the pageant and the optionals competition. She spent a great deal of time with her national sister queens, Miss Plus America, Jorrie Reed (Chicago), Ms. Plus America, Nicole Hayden, (Louisville), Mrs. Plus America, Davonna Booth Minor, (Columbus), and the current Miss Plus America Ambassador, Esther Brandon, (Columbus) who served as the emcee. Yolanda watched the main pageant with her National Co-Director, Marcella Meyer, (Georgia). She was able to share a room with Ms. Pennsylvania Plus America, Katy Halter, who was there serving as a judge. Yolanda said she was very excited to help crown the new winners, Faith Jones, Teen; Ashley Gibbs, Miss; and Shelley King, Ms. She had met Faith and Ashley last summer at the ANSB National Pageant in Louisville and urged them to be a part of this pageant and her instinct was right! They will all be great representatives at Nationals. On Sunday, the party was over and Yolanda had to return on a plane very early that morning, and after she got home she slept about twelve hours. Although it was a whirlwind, it was a wonderful experience and she can't wait to attend the State Pageant next month!

Big grant money available from Ohio Valley United Charities

Non-profit charities that provide services in Gallatin, Carroll, Henry, Owen and Trimble counties are eligible for up to $140,000 in grants to utilize in 2016 from the Ohio Valley United Charities, Inc. and adult literacy.

In addition, United Charities sponsored the "Blue Apply Players" for two presentations in each of the five counties it serves for elementary students, encouraging them to identify adult abusers, while training teachers to recognize the signs of physical or sexual abuse to children.

Eligible charities must have a 502-c-3 designation by the Internal Revenue Service, demonstrate the need for financial assistance, and complete an application explaining the project's goals and objectives.

In Memoriam

Sixteen years ago, we said goodbye to a wonderful husband, dad, grandfather, friend.

You never said, "I'm leaving". You never said "Goodbye".

You were gone before we knew it, and only God knows why.

There are no words to tell you just what we feel inside - the shock, the hurt, the anger will gradually subside.

A million times we'll need you, a million times we cried.

If love alone could have saved you, you never would have died.

In life, we loved you dearly. In death, we love you still.

In our hearts you hold a place no one could ever fill.

We said this before.

It broke our hearts to lose you, but you didn't go alone, for part of us went with you, the day God took you home.

We love and miss you, Dad.

In loving memory of Doris Laverne (Brooks) Miles

Proverbs 31 – "A virtuous woman, who can find Her worth is far above jewels... She extends her hand to the poor and stretches out her hands to the needy...Strength and dignity are her clothing and she smiles at the future. She opens her mouth in wisdom and the teaching of kindness is on her tongue. Her children rise up and bless her...Charm is deceptive, and beauty is fleeting but a woman who fears the LORD is to be praised. Honor her for all that her hands have done, and let her works bring her praise..."

While the words are reflective of my mother, she was truly my blessing. The loving bond between my mother and I is greater than any friendship ever known. Regardless, I miss my best friend. She was the one person who I could tell all my most personal thoughts. She was where I went for comfort and approval. I feel so lost without her. She was beautiful inside and out. I pray that I can pattern my life to be like her. On her 80th. Birthday, even though she is not with me in body, I want her to know that not a minute of each passing day goes by that she is not missed or loved. Time with parents is so precious and never adequate. It should never be taken for granted. I miss you Mom and you are forever in my heart.

In loving memory of Doris Laverne (Brooks) Miles, from her daughter, Connie

Planting by the Signs

by Phil Case

Last week's cold snap on Thursday and Friday reminded us that it's not time to safely plant those warm weather loving veggies. I hope you didn't lose anything or have any damage to your early, unprotected crops.

That said, if we can be patient for another 10 days or so — until after Mother's Day on May 8 — then we should be safe from frosts and/or freezing temperatures.

And that said, these nights when the temperatures drop into the low 40s or upper 30s don't do a thing to help warm the soil, something required for those hot-weather loving crops like tomatoes, beans, peppers, squash and corn.

Also, we're still dealing with wet ground and planting when it's too wet just yields disastrous results all summer.

Patience is the key word here: Let it warm up and dry out and then do your planting.

Skip Smith was telling me Sunday that farmers are in the same predicament as home gardeners — too wet to plant. He said he'd been in the western part of the state a few days earlier and a farmer there was telling Smith he could only report on 22 acres of corn that had been planted!

Surely things will get better soon.

Be sure to visit "This and that" and if you have questions don't hesitate to call, text or email me.

Now, here's this week's information about the phases of the moon and signs of the zodiac as it pertains to planting.

The Moon

The moon is in the light phase now and will remain there until all but the last 18 minutes of Sunday. Assuming you won't be planting during that last 18 minutes on the cusp of the middle of the night, you can continue to plant above-ground producers until Monday when you can start planting below-ground producers.

The next new moon will then occur at 12:13 a.m. May 18, and by then it will be full speed ahead in the garden.

The Signs

What's left of today, Thursday and Friday find the flowering signs in force. Virgo (the bowels) rules today with Libra (the reins) in force Thursday and Friday. These are bloom days and great for planting flowers since it's blooms we're after.

Saturday, which is Derby Day, Sunday and Monday find the sign in Scorpio (the secrets), one of the four most fertile signs. The moon remains in the light phase Friday, Saturday and all but the last 18 minutes of Sunday for above ground producers and then on to dark moon May 4.

If you're willing to take a risk (see above), if your soil is ready and dry, then Saturday and Sunday you could plant a whole lot of above-ground producers since your next opportunity, according to the moon, won't be until May 18 when the moon moves back to the light phase.

But remember what happened in the week just past — and it still could happen again.

This and That

•Stick to veggies that enjoy cool air and soil temperatures for just a bit longer now. The air may be warming but it takes a lot longer for the soil.

•Do not plow, spade or roto-till now if your ground is wet.

•Now through Sunday is a great time to pour gravel or set stones with the moon in the light phase. You will have through all but 18 minutes of May 3 when the next dark moon comes to rule.

Arbor Day Foundation offers tree-care booklet

The Arbor Day Foundation is offering a handy tree-care booklet designed to help people plant and care for trees.

Anyone can receive Conservation Trees, a user-friendly booklet featuring illustrations, colorful photos, and easily understood descriptions, by making a $3 donation to the Foundation this month.

"Conservation Trees is an ideal resource for tree planters," said Matt Harris, chief executive of the Arbor Day Foundation.

"Taking care of existing trees is just as critical as planting new ones, and proper care ensures communities are able to fully enjoy the diverse benefits of urban forestry."

The booklet provides details about the right way to plant and prune trees. It also includes tips on using shade trees and windbreaks to save on energy costs, attract songbirds, and create a living snow fence.

To receive the Conservation Trees booklet, send a $3 check along with your name and address to Conservation Trees, Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, NE 68410, or order online at arborday.org/conservationtrees.

Two state parks in Kentucky offer Derby Day activities

Derby Day Breakfast Planned For Waveland

When you think of Derby Day, you think of history, horses and Kentucky.

Waveland State Historic Site in Lexington will be hosting a special Derby Day breakfast at 10 a.m. May 2, which will include an elegant breakfast served on fine china by period-dressed interpreters.

The event will include a presentation on Waveland and how it influenced horse racing in Lexington. Enjoy the mansion tour following the presentation. Seating is limited, so make your reservation today!

Reservations are required. The cost is $25 per person. Call Waveland at 859-272-3611 for reservations and information.

Waveland State Historic Site is located at 225 Waveland Museum Lane, near the corner of Man O’ War and Nicholasville Road.

Racing Exhibit opens at William Whitley House State Historic Site

A new walking trail and thoroughbred racing exhibit will open on Derby Day, May 2 at the William Whitley House State Historic Site in Lincoln County.

The walking trail will cover what is known as “Sportsman’s Hill,” where horse racing, as we know it today, began. Because of his anti-British sentiment, Col. Whitley ran his races counterclockwise – opposite to the clockwise tradition of the British “Sport of Kings.” The site of one of the country’s earliest race tracks, which dates back to 1788, will feature a half-mile trail with six interpretive signs on the history of racing.

The “Trophies and Silks” exhibit will celebrate thoroughbred racing and feature items on the rich history of the sport in Kentucky. Among items displayed will be racing trophies, including a replica of the Kentucky Derby trophy, jockey silks and other historical racing memorabilia. They will be on display through June 28.

The William Whitley House stands as a monument to pioneer ingenuity and resourcefulness. It was the first brick home and circular racetrack built west of the Allegheny Mountains, completed in 1794 by William Whitley and his wife, Esther. The house was a gathering spot for early Kentuckians, including George Rogers Clark and Daniel Boone.

The William Whitley House, operated by Kentucky State Parks, is about 10 miles south of Stanford off U.S. 150. Exit Interstate 75 at U.S. 150 or take U.S. 27 south from Lexington to U.S. 150 east.

The home is open for tours Wednesday through Sunday starting May 1. Visit www.parks.ky.gov for more information.

Get-Out-The-Vote 2015 Primary

Hundreds of thousands of young Americans are serving our military to preserve our way of life, and yet fewer and fewer of our citizens are participating in our democracy. May 19 is primary election day when Kentuckians will be selecting candidates for Governor, Commissioner of Agriculture, and other constitutional officers. Members of Gallatin County Farm Bureau hope every voter will make their voices heard by casting informed votes for our government leaders.

As Kentuckians, it is our responsibility to find out the ideas of each candidate. And, as Gallatin Countians, it is our responsibility to let the candidates know what issues are important to our community, and it's easy to do. It is critically important we have elected officials in office who understand the importance of agriculture and the issues confronting rural Kentucky. Be involved and attend the functions candidates attend and tell them what is important and ask them about their position on key issues. Campaigns select issues based on what voters tell them are important.

Your involvement will make a difference in the process. First, you must bring your issues to the front of the debate. Then, hold the candidates accountable by going to vote. Gallatin County Farm Bureau urges you to make an impact by voting in the May 19 Primary!

William D. Sullivan

Gallatin County Farm Bureau

2015 Inspection Period

For the Property Tax Assessment Roll

The Gallatin County real property tax roll will be opened for inspection from May 4 through May 18, 2015. Under the supervision of the property valuation administrator or one of the deputies, any person may inspect the tax roll.

This is the January 1, 2015 assessment on which state, county, and school taxes for 2015 will be due about September 15, 2015.

The Tax roll is in the office of the property valuation administrator in the Gutting Annex building and may be inspected between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The PVA Office will also be open on Saturdays May 9th and May 16th from 8:00 a.m. until noon.

Any taxpayer desiring to appeal an assessment on real property made by the PVA must first request a conference with the PVA or a designated deputy. The conference must be held prior to or during the inspection period.

Any taxpayer still aggrieved by an assessment on real property, after the conference with the PVA or designated deputy, may appeal to the county board of assessment appeals.

The taxpayer can appeal his assessment by filing in person or sending a letter or other written petition stating the reasons for appeal, identifying the property and stating the taxpayer's opinion of the fair cash value of the property.

The appeal must be filed with the county clerk's office no later than one work day following the conclusion of the inspection period.

A taxpayer failing to appeal to the county board of assessment appeals, or failing to appear before the board, either in person or by designated rep-resentative, will not be eligible to appeal directly to the Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals.

Appeals of personal property assessments shall not be made to the county board of assessment appeals. Personal property taxpayers shall be served notice under the provisions of KRS 132.450(4) and shall have the protest and appeal rights granted under the provisions of KRS 131.110.

The following steps should be taken when a taxpayer does not agree with the assessed value of personal property as determined by the property valu-ation administrator.

1. He must list under protest (for certification) what he believes to be the fair cash value of his property.
2. He must file a written protest directly with the Department of Revenue, Office of Property Valuation within 30 days from the date of the notice of assessment.
3. This protest must be in accordance with KRS 131.110.
4. The final decision of the Department of Revenue may be appealed to the Kentucky Board of Tax Appeals.
